

DAYSPRING AIRPARK NEWS LETTER

November 1, 2007

We've had a lot of fun this summer at the airpark and things look promising. Like last year, we had higher than normal winds for our fly-in, and turn out, was beginning to look bleak. Then without warning six skilled pilots with friends all flew in within a few minutes of each other.

I'd like to thank all those who came, to show their support this year. Hopefully next year, will be a better flying day, and we can enjoy the event with all those who couldn't make it this time, but wanted to. Pictures of the event can be found, under our pictures section, on the Soaring Heights website.

To date, we have had proximately 30 aircraft use our runway. It seems every week someone new is flying in un-expectantly to see us. This year we even had one of our military's Sea King helicopters land here. That was a real treat, and we hope to see more of them, in the years to come. Some videos of planes using the runway have been posted on YouTube.com. Search for Dayspring Airpark and you should find them right away. We will post more videos as they become available.

Based on feed back we are making changes to and up dating our community concept plan. Once it is done it will be posted on our site. The most visible changes will be; fewer but larger lot sizes and the deletion of some taxiways between properties. Like always, nothing is carved in stone, and it will be you the pilots who dictate the course of the community as it takes shapes.

Recently we moved fill to lengthen the existing runway and we have secured financing to pave it. Before the next home in the community is completed, we will under take to have that done. On the other hand if the pilots, who sign up, wish to see another hanger for aircraft storage first than we can do that. Once again, demand will dictate what we do and in what order.

In time it is our intention to pave all the runway, roads and grass everything else. But like any major project it requires the interest and support of those that will benefit. We have many individuals interested in what we are doing here. As that interest materializes into support; it will help to catapult the project ahead.

I'm excited to see the day that everything is completed. It sure will be one hell of a place to live!
